Honoring Richie's Thoughtful Wit

Richie was a kind and reserved man who brought warmth and wisdom to those around him. He loved sharing his knowledge of sports and statistics, often surprising others with his insights. Conversations with Richie were engaging and heartfelt, filled with trivia and stories that made you appreciate life's little moments.

Ryan shared, "Richie and I were going to cook and talking about fruits and veggies. I made a comment about tomatoes, and he told me in such a matter-of-fact moment that I should have known tomatoes have been a fruit since 1975." Moments like these showcased Richie's wit and unique charm.

Richie found joy in traveling, playing Yahtzee, watching game shows, and spending time with loved ones. He took pride in his volunteer work with Livingston's Visiting Nurses Association, where he thoughtfully collated packets and embraced his role with dedication.

Above all, Richie will be remembered as a respectful and polite self-advocate, unafraid to express his thoughts with kindness and sincerity. His life is a reminder to travel, connect with others, and embrace life's simple joys.

This memorial was created based on reflections shared by Ryan and Victor.
